

Dear Parents:

I respectfully request your permission to administer to your student _____ the Six Seconds Emotional Intelligence Assessment for youth (SEI-YV). The assessment consists of 99 questions, which students complete online. It typically takes about 20-30 minutes. The assessment is a Level B psychological assessment, which requires a 1:1 debrief, which is a personal conversation with the student about the results. Parents are invited to participate in some or all of this discussion or may choose first to discuss their youth's scores without the youth present.

Parents are welcome to receive their youth's SEI-YV report. A pYV assessment is also available, where parents answer questions based on their perspective on the youth. These responses can then be compared to their child's responses and can lead to much meaningful family dialogue.

We believe that young people can develop their emotional intelligence skills. These skills help youth make the best decisions, have healthier relationships, and reach their goals. The assessment and debrief will allow you and your son or daughter to explore their emotional intelligence competencies, reflect on their strengths and develop action plans for developing areas they want to improve.

I would be happy to answer any questions. You may contact me at

Sincerely,
